HUNT YOUTH WHO SHOT HIS RIVAL

Lad Carries Grudge For Year After Seeing Girl Dance With Other Man.

One year ago John Nyikos of Anthony st., danced with Kolman Hirscher's sweetheart. At that time Hirscher swore vengeance, and Wednesday the police department was telephoning and telegraphing to neighboring cities in an effort to apprehend young Hirscher, who is but 17 years old.

Hirscher shot Nyikos Monday night, and the details of the affair were kept secret by the police until Wednesday. The shooting took place in front of the office of the Fessler coal yards, and Nyikos was shot through both arms, just above the elbows. His injuries were dressed. Dr. Oscar Von Barand, who pronounced them not serious.

But Nyikos in his turn is seeking vengeance. He has pleaded with the police department to apprehend young Hirscher so that he may prosecute him. Patrolman De Lee was the first officer who learned of the shooting, and he notified headquarters. Detectives Delinski and Wolters were detailed upon the case. These men learned that Hirscher had left the city on the same night of the shooting.

The girl in the case lives at the residence of Andrew Kokop on S. Chapin st. Her identity was kept secret by the police department. Hirscher lives at 102 W. Thomas st., but persons there interviewed by the police, declared they knew nothing of the young man's whereabouts.

Hirscher is 17 years old, has a scar on his upper lip, and is five feet and seven inches in height.

Thirty-one visits have been made by Miss Williams, the visiting secretary.

The summer months at the home have passed very pleasantly there being no serious illness among the children. Fifty of the boys camped out for the summer in the hills back of the institution and the girls enjoyed a house party at the home of Miss Viola Ewers, just across from the school.

The work which the children have been doing in gardening shows increased interest along those lines and the results have been wonderful; some of the productions having been on exhibition at the show in Mishawaka. Interest in the sewing classes is also reviving at this time and the sewing circles of the city have begun their work in helping the children.

For a few minutes the dust flew thick and fast and it looked for a time that the spectators were not going to get the animals separated. But finally the every-ready pump was turned to its duty and a bucket of cool if not refreshing water ended the bout with the superiority still unsettled.

SUBURBAN MOVE IS LOSING GROUND

Miss Alice Chittendon Speaks Against Votes For Women at Fair.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Declaring that "the way upon which women were carried into the electorate in western states is receding instead of advancing," Miss Alice Hill Chittendon, president of the New York State association, opposed to women suffrage, addressed the state fair here today in behalf of association.

"We are not drones and shirkers," said Miss Chittendon in explaining the attitude of the women opposed to suffrage. "Through the help of explanation that the 'antis' believe that the modern woman has enough burdens now without assuming the obligations of politics."

"Many millennial promises are made by advocates of woman suffrage," said Miss Chittendon, "but do not make the mistake of thinking that woman suffrage will bring about prohibition."

Then the speaker pointed out that California, a state where women vote, went "wet" last year; that North Dakota, a prohibition state, defeated woman suffrage at the polls, and that Montana and Nevada, two "wet" states, voted for woman suffrage.

As to the increased cost of elections when women vote, Miss Chittendon estimated that the cost of the election in this state, the cost of last year's election would have been more than $5,000,000 instead of $2,824,492, the actual cost.

The electorate of New York state will vote on woman suffrage on Nov. 2.

ALLAN LINER NOT SUNK BY SUBMARINE

will be afforded every facility by the state department to test his views before his home government and he will also be able to report on the unofficial channels to the state department regarding the extreme tension that again has been created.

Creates Optimism. Officials were frank in declaring today that the declaration statement secured by the International News Service in Berlin that the foreign office endorsed the letter and spirit of the assurances given by the United States by Ambassador von Bernstorff that hereafter there would be no wanton attacks on passenger-carrying vessels had done much to create optimism among administration officials.

It was the first indication of information from important sources that von Bernstorff had not been "double crossed" by the admiralty influences in the Berlin foreign office, and it confirmed the claim that he has a strong right to powers to settle all matters now in dispute. Count von Bernstorff will return to the summer embassy to await the verdict of his home government on the Arabic extension. It was pointed out today that apparently a serious diplomatic blunder has been made by Germany in sending the Arabic note direct instead of first consulting its contents to the ambassador here.

If he had had opportunity to pass upon it, it is certain that clearer language would have been used to indicate that the arbitrator offer went only to the question of liability for indemnity and the amount to be fixed. Sec'y Lansing recognized that this was meant and made it very plain there would be no objection to such a course. But the president held that the text could be interpreted as a desire to arbitrate responsibility for the death of Americans and he refused to permit formal and Lusitania to be arbitrated herself and admits that the submarine commander was in error, thus disavowing the attack.

Wants to Arbitrate.

An unofficial disclosure by Germany would, it is pointed out, make her liable for an indemnity, the amount of which could be fixed by this government. Germany holds that Americans have not an indisputable right to travel on certain enemy ships and wants to submit this to arbitration as a barrier against her having to pay an enormous indemnity in both the Arabic and Lusitania cases. Indemnity through arbitration. Sec'y Lansing and Ambassador von Bernstorff both agree is not an unusual proceeding, and the only hitch is the desire of the president to disavow the offer. The ambassador is very hopeful that the Berlin government can meet this demand in such a manner that its interests will be protected. The state department was waiting today for the German note in the Hesperian case. The declaration by Bernstorff that a mine and not a German torpedo sunk the liner probably will be accepted by the state department. The neither Ambassador Page nor Consul Frost at Queenstown has obtained any evidence to the contrary. Sec'y Lansing said he was not in a position to comment on the German note until all of the facts are before him.

SEARCH HOUSES.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Sept. 15.—Though tomorrow is Mexico's Independence day, celebrations began in all Mexican towns along the border today while American military authorities were taking extraordinary precautions to prevent attacks upon United States soil by armed citizens of the southern republic. The round-up of suspicious Mexicans continued with great vigor in all disturbed districts along the Rio Grande.

The houses of all Mexicans are being searched and every weapon found is confiscated. A large wagonload of arms and ammunition gathered up by Texas Rangers was brought to Brownsville today. The weapons were appraised and the Americans who have been sworn in to assist the authorities are being armed.

Though the Carranza commander at Matamoros has sent word across the border that he will prevent his soldiers from participating in any civil war upon American territory, the United States military authorities here did not relax their precautions today. The sentries on the Rio Grande border were redoubled at all points.

GEN. MILLS IS ACTIVE DESPITE HIS 80 YEARS

Took Prominent Part in Planning New Club Building at Capital.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Gen. Anson Mills, U. S. A., retired, of the nation's "grand old men" recently celebrated his 81st birthday anniversary.

Despite his four score and one years, Gen. Mills still is active in military and public affairs. He makes his home in Washington and is a familiar figure about the Army and Navy club. He took an active part recently in the development of plans for, and the building of, the new club house, one of the show places in the national capital. He also is a director in the Army Mutual Aid association, an insurance organization of army men.

Gen. Mills had a noteworthy record in the Civil war. He fought throughout that memorable struggle between the states, taking part in scores of engagements. He was not absent during the entire war, not even on sick leave. At the close of the war he participated in a number of Indian engagements.

Born on a farm in Indiana, Gen. Mills received his appointment as a cadet at West Point in 1856, going through the military training school with honors. One of his early work was the laying out of the first plan of the city of El Paso. He evinced an early interest in boundary surveying and was surveyor for the commission that established the boundary between New Mexico, Indian territory and Texas.

In 1861 he became first lieutenant of the Eighteenth U. S. infantry and rose to the rank of captain in 1863. He was promoted to major in 1878 and was made a lieutenant colonel in 1890. The rank of colonel was attained two years later and in 1897 he became a brigadier general.

He was in command of the United States troops at the battle of Slim Buttes in 1876. Later he served as a member of the board of visitors at the United States military academy and was sent to Paris as military attaché to the exposition in the French capital.

In 1897 he brought his active military career to a close and was placed on the retired list at his own request.
